

What is interpersonal abuse?

Interpersonal abuse is a pattern of behavior used to gain power and control over another person. It doesn't necessarily mean physical violence, and it doesn't only happen in romantic relationships. It could involve threats, extreme jealousy, name calling, false accusations, controlling behavior, property damage, isolation from friends and family, sexual coercion, stalking or financial abuse. It's not OK.

What does Coburn Place do?

We empower survivors of interpersonal abuse. We believe in starting with safe housing and letting them lead the way. We offer supportive services and lift survivors – and their children – up so they can soar. We serve everyone – cisgender, transgender and nonbinary survivors. We have transitional housing at our flagship building in Midtown Indianapolis and in the community. Our services are available to all our clients, including those on our waiting list and program graduates. Breaking the cycle of abuse creates stronger people, stronger families and – ultimately – stronger communities.

PLACE

About the program

Coburn Place is constantly evolving to be a top-tier program and a leader in the field of domestic violence programs to support survivors in the best possible way.

You will have two advocates – one for housing and one for well-being – on your side to guide you. We recognize survivors as experts in their own lives and do not mandate programming.

We also recognize that each survivor is on their own unique journey to immediate and long-term safety, to emotional and social well-being, to self-sufficiency and to permanent housing.

Our programs and services are designed to empower our clients on this journey and partner with them along the way. We can offer you a warm and caring environment, safety and security, and respect.

Well-Being Services

We offer a range of services to help you reach your goals – from support groups and individual therapy to court advocacy and victim assistance. We can help with financial literacy, fitness, advancing your education, job readiness and direct budget-stretching help – whatever you need, when you decide you want it.

Housing Services

We provide on-site housing in 15 studio, 15 two-bedroom, and five three-bedroom apartments and allow you to stay with us for up to 24 months. On-site apartments are provided fully furnished, rent- and utility-free, and residents are encouraged to save those funds toward their permanent housing and self-sufficiency.

We can help find housing in the community for survivors who are dealing with less severe safety, self-sufficiency and permanent housing barriers. We can provide rental assistance for up to 12 months on a tiered level of support. This short-term assistance is meant to help survivors get back on their feet in a short amount of time.

Children's Services

Children have their very own advocates to make sure they can enjoy just being kids while working toward a safe and healthy tomorrow. We offer play spaces, support groups, homework help and tutoring, art therapy, healthy relationship and anti-bullying programs, field trips, and school break camps.
